As on Monday and Tuesday, two long lines of motorists waited outside the capitol when the division opened for business, and it was until midafternoon that these lines began to thin.

During the present rush the tag division will be open from 8 o'clock in the morning until 6 in the evening, Mr. Doyal said.

"In postoffice for the convenience of tag purchasers was almost unused, according to Postmaster E. K. Large. Hundreds of money order blanks had been filled out by postal employees and all required of tag buyers was their signatures and $3.10.

The postmaster said he had expected a rush for the service, but that even fewer people used money orders by Wednesday than on Tuesday.

Chairman Doyal said that every section of the state has been provided with application blanks to be used by tag buyers, adding that if possible the tags will be mailed out the same day the application arrives.

"We are doing our best to get tags to every one at once, because we know that despite promises of various governors of nearby states our auto owners are embarrassed if they leave Georgia," Mr. Doyal said. "We hope to have the entire state served in record time this year."

On street cars, buses and subways, passengers talked in muffled voices and usually lapsed into silence when a Hiterlite brown shirt appeared.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

To anyone who, like myself, dreams of China as a warm and mellow country where people wear light silk garments, the news that the temperature in Jehol province, where temperature in Jenoi province, where the fighting is going on at present, is about 23 below zero must come as a surprise. To anyone who remembers the winter of 1917-1918 in France, this fact will appear as the height of tragedy. For it means that if a man is wounded and can't move from the spot where he falls, he freezes to death. Photographs of Chinese and Japanese troops show them in fur coats, heavy pack-boots and wearing big fuzzy bonnets with

In 1917 the temperature did not go as low as 23 degrees, but it felt like 40 below nevertheless. Personally. it took me till noon every day thaw out. As soon as the sun w down-and what a dismal sun it was -I started to freeze again. The quar-termaster handed out rations of rum in the morning, but that did not help much. One of the worst features of the situation was the frozen earth. When a bombardment started and a shell exploded in or near the trenches, the chunks of ice that flew up were just as effective in putting a man hors de combat as the shell-splinters themselves. There seemed no end to that winter either. Day after day the sun remained in hiding, and when it did finally come out it was so weak and anaemic that it only served to exasperate the troops.

We can sympathize with the Chinese and Japanese soldiers out there in the hills of Jehol. No amount of argument can wipe out the fact that war is an uncivilized business, unworthy of man and will prove positively futile in the end. Mr. Matsuoka, the Japanese delegate in Geneva, told me on his way out that the occupation of Manchuria was a metter of life and death for Japane. as if that is an argument in favor for violence.

The House Is Equally Empty, Whether the Owners Are Dead Or Merely Away on a Visit By Robert Quillen-

If a man who destroys his life is insane, how intelligent is the man who throws away part of his life?

Consider the matter in this way. Life is the opposite of death. Sleep called a form of death because it takes away awareness of life. The tree and the hibernating bear have life, but man is truly alive only in the degree that he is conscious of living.

If that is true, the ordinary individual throws away much of his life. in rare moments is he keenly aware of himself and the world about him. His eyes behold innumerable things and he sees few or none of them; he hears much and is scarcely aware of hearing. He speaks and is scarcely conscious of what he is saying. He eats without tasting, smokes without desire and follows his accustomed routine without conscious effort. He is an automaton, moving in a trance.

Why are we so seldom fully aware of the present moment? For the simple reason that our minds are occupied with the past or the future. In other words, we fail to live in the present—throw away the only life we have—because of a past that is lost or a future we may not have. that isn't throwing away life, what is it?

It is a folly for which we suffer endless punishment. The shames and failures and woes that cause our unhappiness are almost wholly in the past or the future. They are not real, but wholly imaginary. If you are at this moment free of physical discomfort and no imnediate danger threatens, of what do you complain? The past doesn't exist; the future doesn't exist. Nothing is real except the present moment -and you waste it in a trance or poison it with regrets and fears.

Life is always present tense. All else is imagination. If wild creatures were as foolish as men, fearful memories and dread dangers to come would make them easy prey. But they live only in the present, without remorse or forebodings to burden their minds, and their reward is poise, dignity and con-

Myrna Loy is one Hollywood girl who goes up and up this season. Her newest vehicle, "When Ladies Meet"

—a Rachel Crothers play in which she appears opposite Bob Montgomery, takes her completely out of those semi-sinister roles that have been her semi-sinister roles that have been her continuous lot since her entrance into motion pictures. She plays the part of Mary, a young novelist, who seeks to find a solution for fiction difficulties in a real-life triangle. The picture will be interesting in more ways than one. It is Ann Harding's first role for M. G. M. and Alice Brady's return to the films after ten years' absence. When Clark Gable arrived at the Santa Maria inn during the recent earthquake exodus, word went about that the star was in the hotel and had asked the time the feature picture went on in the village theater.

The inn—a haven of flowery rest, amed for its beautiful bloc silken service and its remoteness from all the things we love to escape from time to time, never seems crowded, even when full. The guests have a way of disappearing—the lobby is murmurous with nature sounds from he gardens without but never viwith human discords. On this particular night when Clark Gable returned from the pic-ture, imagine the usually quiet Jobby jammed with excited people, all waiting this brief opportunity to see the famous star in person.

A few days later a tall gray-haired woman came in and registered quiet-ly. Mrs. Herbert Hoover—but yester-day first lady in the land—passed unnoticed through the luncheon guests, to a quiet table near a great jar of flowering quince blossoms, and nobody was the wiser.

former senator, said he was "stagger-ed at the character of the bill." "I visualize with difficulty," Wadsworth said, "the immense bureaucracy that will have to be set up in Washington with tenacles reaching as a gentleman from Kansas said into every backyard in the country to control its citizens." Lemke, republican, North Dakota, voiced an opinion apparently shared by many farm representatives when in explaining his support of the bill,

"Normally there are not enough democrats in my state to fill the post-offices. But we gave Franklin D. Roosevelt a 160,000 majority over the great mistake then presiding over the nation. We had confidence in Frank-"Normally there are Even from some of the big metropolitan areas the farm plan gathered strong support. Only one man against the bill.

Its actual provisions were discussed

Its actual provisions were discussed only casually. But the bill's chief con-tent was a huge grant of power to President Roosevelt and Secretary Wallace to be employed in boosting farm buying power.
Nine commodities were included:

Wheat, cotton, tobacco, corn, rice, hogs, cattle, sheep, milk and its prod-ucts. Then the secretary was told to secure a higher purchasing power for these commodities by establishing a better balance between production and

To bring down production, he would enter voluntary agreements with producers to slash acreage and lower pr duction. In return for such curtail-ments, the producer would be paid di-rect benefits or rent on the withdrawn acreage.

These payments would come out of processing taxes levied on the com modities. The maximum tax allowed would be the difference between actual farm prices for a commodity and the price which would give that commodity its pre-war purchasing value.

When this purchasing value is reached normally through adjustment of supply and demand, this tax would have proved But the secretary may be removed. But the secretary may raise or lower it at any time to pre vent shifts in consumption.

Better to insure success of the plan, the secretary is granted broad powers to enter marketing agreements and to regulate, through a licensing system, the handling of the commodities in interstate commerce.

Added to the bill's general plan was the Smith cotton bill—given a pocket veto last session by President Hoover. It would pool all cotton on which the government has loaned and then give growers options on shares of this cotton in return for agree-ments to cut acreage at least 30 per The growers then would benecent. fit by any increase in cotton prices. At the same time there are plenty of signs that such a proposal may encounter strong opposition. With the proposed power in his hands, President Roosevelt would be in a position to make tariff dickers with any nation. One of the first countries which might be probably would be Great Britain. "play down" the war debts, a distinct relation between the debts and tariffs is seen by officials.

Much of the argument of the debtor nations for revision has been based on the plea that the United States was making it impossible for them to pay by raising tariff walls which prevented sale of their goods here in exchange for the dollars needed to pay and exchange restrictions and will

Much of the force of this argument will be lost, it was pointed out at the state department, if the debtor nations are enabled to enter American markets more extensively in return for opening their markets to the goods

Officials said that if a readjustment of the debts can be found which would be beneficial alike to the creditor and debtor there will be gument about it.

RIGID REGULATION OF LOANS SOUGHT

Johnson Seeks Publicity on Foreign Loans Underwritten in America.

WASHINGTON, March 22 .- (AP)-Senator Hiram Johnson, of California. today laid before the senate a sheaf of legislation calling for rigid regulation and full publicity for all foreign loans underwritten in America.

Although the three bills apparently were in harmony with President Roosevelt's declaration for strict banking and investment supervision. the senator expressly stated that they were not put forward on behalf of the administration. They are revisions of bills he first offered in January, 1932, and are based on the disclosures of the senate finance committee investigation last year into foreign security sales in this country.

"They are not being introduced in conjunction with anyone," newspapermen were told by Johnson, who though a republican, is a supporter of the president.

The major bill, setting up a foreign loan board to pass on securities, Johnson said, was revised by including "the best portions of the British securities act, to amplify the bill, make it stronger and fix it so that it will do the job in any contingency."

114 CIVIL ENGINEERS

JOBLESS IN GEORGIA

The Georgia section of the American Society of Civil Engineers has completed a survey of the state which shows that 114 out of 599 men of the profession are not employed in their usual line of work, according to L. F. Bellinger, of Atlanta, secretary and treasurer of the division.

The survey revealed that 10 per cent of the society members in Georgia are unemployed, as against 6 per cent in the United States. On the other hand, the survey shows that members and non-members in Georgia who are out of their usual positions amount to 19 per cent, as against 43 per cent in the nation. Total unemployed in Georgia is 14 per cent, against 30 per cent in the entire country.

Crackers Real First Division Ball Club, Wilbert Robinson Says

THE BABE COMES TO TERMS.

When The Babe has hit his last home run And the big stick is silent and nil, When the *last, long Ruthian wallop is done And the roar-rocked bleachers are still-Would they argue then over terms,

While the runners pant at their bases And the mob for a home run yearns? Call his bat from the trophy cases?

Oh, the time will come when they'll long for Ruth, (The series tied and the Yanks all in.) They'll long for him and admit the truth-That The Babe was rude and costly as sin

But the swing of his bat and the crowd's mad blast Were cheap at the price they paid, Could they bring him back from the shadowy past For one more home run parade!

ALL IN A DAY'S WORK.

The banking bill, the economy bill, the beer bill and Babe Ruth have all been signed.

It was almost automatic—as soon as the president signed the beer bill, Colonel Jake Ruppert, a brewer of large interests in New York, with the New York Yankees as his sideline hobby,

It is a question of who won the war. Both were out of ultimatums. Ultimatums are the ammunition in these annual holdout sniping contests between the Yankees and the Babe. Each had fired his last ultimatum. The Babe's was "$60,000 or else." The Colonel's was "Not a cent more than $50,000."

The Babe came to terms for $52,000, which is quite a few cents more than $50,000, but still quite a distance from the rather plump financial figures of the Babe's last ultimatum—$60,000.

At any rate, the Great Man is saved for the national game once more and the depression may now go ahead and begin to make little graphs showing an upward trend.

The Babe's salary is now on the downward grade. But it is still high enough to cause the wolf to make a detour around the Babe's door.

He started drawing, so reports have it, $60 dollars a month and liking it. He saw that run to $80,000 for the six months' season. He was getting $75,000 last season. And now his salary has shrunk to the pitiful sum of $52,000 for six months of baseball, which means a couple of hours play each afternoon, approximately half of which is spent sitting on the bench.

THE MIGHTY CASEY.

Casey Stengel, of the Brooklyns, is the last real clown left in baseball, reports Joe Williams, of the World-Telly. And he tells a story of how the baseball reporters almost kept Stengel

It all dates back to the 1923 World Series when Stengel won two games with home runs, one of them being a 1-to-0 score. He was a veteran and the reporters made the most of it-writing of the aged and graying Stengel creaking around the bases, his dogs barking in agony. And the girl's family saw them and decided their daughter would be wrong to throw herself away on such an old man.

Stengel was at Anniston, Ala., in 1930 when the Crackers were coming back from their camp at Douglas. They stopped there for a game. Stengel was pointing out an outfielder who several errors in the morning practice

"See that guy," he said to me, "the balls were hitting him on the head AND BOUNCING." And he wagged his head in distress.

UNCLE ROBBY'S RETURN.

Return of Your Uncle Wilbert Robinson from the Cracker camp at Mobile coincides with the announcement that the opening day tickets to the Cracker game on April 13 will go on sale today at the Five Points drug store.

It is a bit startling to find the baseball season so near at hand. Interest may be expected to mount stead-The game has had quite a lot to compete with. Fans have turned to the baseball news from the camps but they have hurried past it to find out what this fellow Franklin D. Roosevelt was doing.

Somehow baseball news paled into insignificance beside the crisis of banks, bills and beer. But now that all is settled baseball will come into its own.

The Cracker situation is, according to Robinson, rather encouraging. Your Uncle Wilbert makes no claims beyond that of a first division club. And this, he thinks, will improve.

The tickets for opening day are on sale—this means it is time to start training the old digestive apparatus to take care of a bag of peanuts and a bottle of your favorite pop on a hot summer's afternoon.

THEY GO UP SWIFTLY.

They go up very swiftly when they do go.

And one of the greatest of thrills in sport is to follow one of the youngsters, raw and uncertain, and watch him develop into one of the stars of whatever game he plays.

It was just three years ago—three short years—that Luke Appling, a rather thin and gangling youth with big hands, rode out to the baseball park on Ponce de Leon. He had definitely out to the baseball park on Ponce de Leon. He had definitely decided to have a whirl at pro baseball.

There was a hue and cry on then, as there is now and then, for the local club to give local boys a chance. And so Appling signed a contract which called for so much for signing and so much of his sale price-if any. He was gambling. There was no one, unless it was Tubby Walton, the big fellow who is a sort of father to all kid ball players in town, who expected him to make good. But he did-wheeling along at shortstop-sticking it out, although he went in there just to fill in for a day or so, to justify the publicity that had been expended on him. But he stayed on. They took him out for a couple of days and then put him right back. The job was his.

The summer wore on and when fall came a White Sox scout put $20,000 on the line, and added a ball player valued at $5,000, for the purchase of the kid who had been but a few months out of Oglethorpe University.

That was amazing enough. He was about to come back to the minors next spring. His fielding wasn't good enough. His hitting was. But he stayed on—in the lineup and out. And last year he was in most of the way, closing out the season with a grand flourish as if he had suddenly got the feel of his position; as if he felt for the first time the surge of confidence necessary to go along under the big top.

And now comes Lew Fonseca, of the Sox, saying that he believes Appling to be his best infield bet. The boy is a fix-

Coach Bill White, beginning his thirteenth season as coach of the Bulldogs, has a wealth of excellent material available for his starting lineup. There are at least two candidates for every position. Coach White's main problem will be deciding just which nine men to start against Clemson.

Second Tennis League To Be Formed Here

Another tennis league, the second to be organized within the past week, has been assured for Atlanta, during the spring and summer months, it was learned Wednesday.

Several representatives of Sunday school classes in the city will meet at 1 o'clock Saturday at the sports department of the Parks-Chambers Company on Peachtree street to formally organize a league.

The new league will be similar to the regular summer baseball league, with the matches to be played on Saturday afternoons.

A schedule of two or three matches between each team is being worked out and will be presented at the Saturday meeting, at which time officers will be elected.

A league to consist of commercial firms with matches slated for Saturday or Sunday was tentatively organized earlier in the week and will be completed April 1.

in the 1933 World Series, according to "winter book" odds announced here today by Tom Kearney, betting commissioner.

The Yankees are overwhelming favorites at 3 to 5 in the American league, while the Pirates, facing stiffer opposition in the National, are quoted at 2 to 1.

The odds mean that for every $5 you bet on the Yankees, Kearney will pay $3 if they win. If you want to bet on the Pirates to finish first in the National you can get $2 for every $1 you put up.

The Washington Senators and the Philadelphia Athletics are picked for second and third place in the American league. In the senfor circuit the St. Louis Cardinals and the Chicago Cubs are rated even for second and third places.

The figures follow:

Some of the boys were late reporting.

"The infield is still a bit stiff but I think it is going to be one of the best. It is an all-Class A infield and that is a help.

FIRST DIVISION.

"Yes, sir, I think, and Charley Moore does too, that this will be a first-division ball club. It won't be a dead outfit struggling along. We've got enough veterans to balance the young fellows. I don't mean it looks like a pennant winner. It doesn't. But it may look that way later. It is three weeks until the season starts and we'll get better right along."

It was difficult to interrupt him but we finally edged in a query as to the looks of the two recruit outfielders. Duck McKee and Fred Sington. "They look good," said Robby. "They aren't hitting yet. Sington is hitting better than any of them. But that's because they aren't in shape. A fellow has to be in shape to play ball."

This is very encouraging news from the president of the Crackers. He makes no great claims—sees a first-in division club with a real chance to do better. He has confidence in Charley Moore and the players.

Some took it a little better. All were blue as indigo.

Back at the hotel, dressed and "shined" in their street clothes, there was a transformation. Some of the rookies gain confidence after an encouraging chat with Manager Moore, who pointed out their good qualities and told them to cultivate them. Some sent off telegrams to other clubs. Others openly boasted that they would have a job by nightfall in this or that league. Came nightfall and no answer from the telegrams. Baseball jobs are dear this year, even for veterans. At midnight, they are still hanging around the hotel lobby, wendering where they are going to sleep.

GENEVA, March 22.—(UP)—
Charges that official Japanese plans for an invasion of China below the Great Wall had been discovered were made today by the Chinese delegation

The Chinese declared that the Japanese war office scheme was to invade to proceed as far south as Tsinan, capital of Shantung province.

The delegation said the plans worked out in details had been found on a

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:
What can a girl do when she and her mother despise each other? I have other problems also. I was a tomboy when I was quite young and now that I am old enough to have dates the boys shun me. Occasionally some of them invite me to go fishing or hiking, but I want to be popular like the other girls.

A. H.

ANSWER:

It was said of a man in an old story that "his hand was against every man and every man's hand was against thim." That seems to be your trouble. When the relation between a girl and her mother is wrong, everything else in life is wrong and continues to be wrong until such time as they may be separated. There is not much a girl can do when she and her mother despise each other but learn self-control, and to do what is required of her promptly and efficiently. That won't make love take the place of hate but it will permit life to run smoothly on the surface, at least. Obedience, willingness to co-operate, and an effort to be pleasant and agreeable about it all will win justice from the hands of a parent or a teacher, if it won't win affection. ANSWER:

There are some natures so antago-nistic to each other that nothing can eliminate the antagonism and all the pretty sentimental talk in the world doesn't obviate the fact that there is no accommodation to be made between them. But here is where will power comes in handily. You can learn to grit your teeth and endure what must be endured until you can leave home and make your own life.

As to your unsuccessful social life, here, too, you have to make the best of what you have. There are some boys that like an athletic girl, one who hikes well and swims and rides well. Cultivate friendship with that type and always remember that there is a feminine way of doing masculine things.

The energy and drive of a tom-boy is often harnessed in a most attractive way. I once heard an old lady who say that the best wives and mothers she had ever seen were tomboyish schoolgirls. You are not the languorous, clinging vine type but rather the had taught school for some fifty years type that a movie director describes the type that men want to own in stead of the type men want to protect. It so happens that you haven't met many boys to whom your type appeals. But then I imagine you are very young and there is plenty of time in caroline Chatfield. DEAR MISS CHATFIELD: Can you help a lonely girl. I work in the daytime and spend all my lonely evenings in my rented room.

ANSWER. ANSWER:
You will have to help yourself.
Perhaps I may point the way. The day's work should afford opportunity for making friends of the fellow workers. If you have ever seen an automobile or a battle ship throw out a smoke screen you have seen a picture of the thing you are doing with your loneliness. You are making a smoke screen of it and throwing it out so those with whom you associate never see you. Nothing ing it out so those with whom you associate never see you. Nothing draws people to you like the display of a happy disposition. Nothing drives people away from you like display of a morose one. If you will make friends in the daylight hours you will have somewhere to go in the evening hours, and somebody to go with, too.

If you will spend your lonely hours If you will spend your ionery nours cultivating your mind, you will have agreeable topics of conversation with which to regale your new friends. Loneliness is emptiness, and primarily mind emptiness. Fill up. You have health and work to begin with. With these advantages you may find love. neath and work to begin with. With those advantages you may find love and friendship for the asking, which implies effort of many sorts. People don't come into your home without being invited. Nor a second time to your home unless you provide agree-able entertainment. They don't stay in your life unless you do the same. You must make them welcome. You must make them feel they are necessary to you. CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

The word "law," in this particular, is used in a broad sense. Strictly speaking, a law is a rule of action prescribed by some superior which the inferior is bound to obey. This, however, is a purely political definition of the word, but in physics the word "law," has two meanings. In one

When California Red felt the touch of rope, bridle, and the weight of a rider in the unknown saddle, he rock-eted skyward.

Ben gave the horse his head and after a few "sun-fish ers" around the corral, Ben and Red burst forth, headed for the open range.

Conquered at last, California Red came to a pant standstill. Capitulation was most remarkable, and Ben put it down to the treachery of the ice, which had made his capture comparatively easy. Lost in the glory of his wonderful mount, Ben leaned forward to stroke his neck, whispering words of admiration.

Bart had been very busy in town these days laying the road to his future, where he'd be settled and happy and all the things married couples were supposed to be. Social usage had kept him home nights or very quietly loafing around the little Wyattville house with Lora. She had't lost a parent recently, and it didn't seem fair to hold her forever in an endless tete-a-tete.

Ingy Warren was a good enough stop-gap; if it had been any one else Bart would have been thankful to him for keeping Lora entertained while the engagement hung fire. Without acknowledging it to himself—pretending not even to think about it any more—Bart was glad that Ingy's mind was off Folly Island and that him proving there, had hear are view of the many to a single the something about Lora?"

Your father's family wanted us to be engaged for a year. But he made a terrible row about it and he had his way. I've always been glad that we didn't wait until—the best part died. And I think it would be better," she said. calmly, "if you set a date pretty soon.

This was the consent he had been waiting for.

"Mother!" He pressed her hand.

"Long engagements aren't good for people. They get on everybody's neves." Her look was so loving, so "Yes." Her look was so loving, so "Yes." Her look was so loving, so alone, mother."

"You've taken the Stanley house, haven't you? Ad that's just down the road." Almost feverishly. "And you'll see me every day—after you get back from your trip."

"Yes." I'll want to do that, mother."

"Lora and I are going to be such good friends. It isn't as if you were marrying a stranger. The Linds are our sort. Edith and I have always been so close. And Lora's improved enormously, now that she's going to settle down."

Again he had the feeling of his mother treading on dangerous ground, quite oblivious of where she was going. "Lora's a swell girl, mother," he said. "It's hard for anybody on the let Aunt Augusta put notions in your head."

"Yes all right, if you're in love with her."

"You don't think I'd want to marry it girl unless I were."

Her eyes dwelt fondly upon her only son.

"Have you and Lora set any date for the wedding?"

"You and I talked that over," he said, and was sulky in spite of himself. "We agreed, didn't we, that it would be better to wait until spring?

Lora was very sensible about it. Shean be sensible, you know."

Pressure of liquidation was less accomplete.

Selling appeared to come principally from wire houses and local interests, but pressure from the south was relatively light. The market displayed a rather steady undertone during the latter part of the session with fluctuations for the day confined to a range of 7 ket braced up and recovered some part of the early losses. The rally proved to have little vigor. The trend was downward near the close. Final prices were a shade above the Final prices were a shade above the lowest in some groups.

Talk of lower rates encouraged further selling in utilities, some of which widened previous losses to the extent of 1 to 3 points. Electric Bond & Share preferred and Consolidated Gas of Baltimore and New England Power preferred yielded from 2 to 3 points.

It took little actual selling to effect sharp losses in some instances in industrial and specialty groups, due to a scarcity of bids near the market. Great Atlantic & Pacific dropped 4 points and Chesebrough Manufacturing 3.

Evidently reflecting a renewal of professional activity, several of the gold mining stocks became active at rising prices.

excitement in the Street.

The shares were bought "at the market" and the urgency as well as the ease with which the prices of the stocks advanced caused the activity to be viewed with welcome optimism.

The stocks in which orders for 5,000 shares each "at the market" appeared were United States Steel common, J. I. Case. International Harvester.

General Motors. Pullman Company and Standard Oil of New Jersey. The orders came onto the floor of the stock exchange just as the market closed, indicating that the purchasers wanted the shares without getting too much of a following until the actuating developments broke.

Two important banks in Chicago today decided to omit their dividends due at this time. A substantial volume of New York bank stocks have been sold from Chicago the last week.

Expectations of the development of or by the action of the market for bank stocks which, following the close of creek to perienced a sharp recovery after establishment of new low prices. DOBBS & CO.—We would continue to expect some sort of a raily in the market before the week-end.

government securities failed to attract any noticeable following in the bond market today and prices generally continued irregularly lower.

Aside from the federals, which were fairly active, trading was about as listless as that of yesterday. Sales totaled $10.299,000. par value, and the average for 60 domestic corporate loans dropped one-half point.

Many of the treasury maturities and Liberty fourth 41-4s were quite lively at times, most of the buying being attributed to a renewal of institutional demands. Gains in this section ranged from 2.32nds of a point in the Liberty 4 1-4s to 30-32nds in treasury 4s.

Although various foreign obligations rallied feebly. European political uncertainties remained as depressing factors in this department.

Domestic rails, after firming a bit, turned rather heavy. There was some nervousness regarding action on the carriers which may be taken by Washington.

A few of the utilities and industrials displayed some resistance, but the majority sagged. Loew's deben-ture 6s took a sudden turn for the worse by losing 6 1-8 points.

He could not hear their words, but all seeme on the best of terms. Tarzan turned away scowling. If any had been close by they might have heard a low growl rumble from his chest. Know-ing his country was at war with the Reds, Tarzan also knew it was his duty to expose the girl's perfidy. And yet he hesitated. He did not see her before she left.

Already had he spoken farewell to Roger. Now he stood watching until the plane disappeared, a tiny speck high in the eastern sky. The Tommies were waiting orders to begin the return merch.
Colonel Capell, ready to go with them, sought out Tarzan. "I wish you'd come with us, Greystoke," he said. "Lieutenant Cecil and the young woman want you to."

"No," replied Tarzan, "I shall go on my way, alone. Cecil and Olga Boresch were only prompted by a sense of gratitude in considering my welfare." "Olga Boresch?" exclaimed Capell. Then he laughed. "You know her, then as Olga, the Red spy? Is that ALL you know?" "Yes," answered Tarzan, "and that's enough." You're mis-taken," said Capell.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—(P)— Robert Worth Bingham, of Kentucky, President Roosevelt's choice for the major American diplomatic assignment, ambassador to Great Britain, today was confirmed by the senate within a few hours after his nomina-tion was approved by the foreign re lation committee. speeches made by Bingham in Scot-land in 1927. Later in the day, when Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the demo-cratic leader for the second time asked that Bingham's name be considered, McNary announced he had been ad-vised Borah had no objection to Bingham, and the senate promptly con-
